Sweepstake Winner Tells How To Win

BOMBS WRECK NEGRO HOMES—Following the bombing of homes occupied by Negro and Mexican families in a predominantly white district of Los Angeles, policeman B. J. Bundo checks wreckage in the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Bailey. Before the Bailey family moved in, the owner of the property reported to police he had received threatening letters.—Central Press Canadian.

POLITE BOW IS PART OF DIPLOMACY—Lincoln MacVeagh, new United States ambassador to Spain, bows low as he presents his credentials to Generalissimo Francisco Franco in the latter's palace at Madrid. MacVeagh was formerly ambassador to Portugal.—Central Press Canadian.

LIKE TRUMAN, RHEE WON'T RUN AGAIN—Following his arrival at an airport in South Korea, President Syngman Rhee, 77, is greeted by Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the Eighth Army, and has his hand clasped by an aged woman from Yang Yang. She represented 6,000 women of that area made homeless by the war. Rhee, like Truman, will not run for office again.—Central Press Canadian.

A BLOODHOUND GETS THE SCENT of three men who used this car to flee from Danvers, Mass., with more than $600,000 looted from an armored car. Witnesses, not knowing what was going on, said they saw men transferring "bundles" from this car to another in Everett, Mass., before speeding away towards Boston. 288

QUEEN ELIZABETH and the Duke of Edinburgh arrive by car at Buckingham Palace in London to participate in an investiture ceremony for those most closely connected with the funeral of her father, the late King George VI. Awards of the Royal Victorian Medal in silver went to persons who had provided personal services for the sovereign. The Queen and Duke drove from nearby Clarence House where they currently reside.

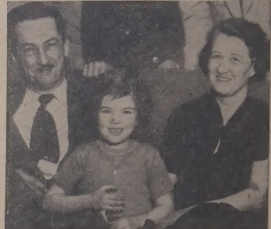

AIR CRASHES MAY CHANGE ENTIRE AIR SYSTEM—Mounting protests over the loss of life in the New York city area may spell the end of airports close to crowded cities. This is the spot at Jamaica, N.Y., where a cargo plane crashed, killing five. It raised the death toll from air disasters in the New York suburban area to 124 in the past four months.—Central Press Canadian.

IN JUST THREE WEEKS—These two naval photographs, taken three weeks apart, show the widely contrasting weather conditions experienced recently by members of the destroyer H.M.C.S. Nootka. Above, a group of men from the Nootka watch the surf roll in on a palm-fringed beach on the island of Oahu during the ship's stay at Pearl Harbor while en route to the Far East. Three weeks later the Nootka was carrying out her first patrol in the North Pacific. Below, Nootka's crew watches the surf from the deck of the ship as it cuts through the choppy water in the cold grip of a Korean winter. In this latter setting, CPO James Joyce, Alameda, Calif., postwar's mate of the Nootka, is shown below examining ice which he formed on the upper deck of the destroyer.

TELLS HOW TO WIN A SWEEPSTAKES. Mr. Romeo Trepanier of Vashleyford, Que., shown with his wife and daughter, Joette, won $137,500 on the Grand National sweepstakes and believes it was his system that won for him. The system, as he explains it, is something like this: According to the Zodiac charts his number is two. He doubled up somewhere, making it two times two. He's 44 years old, which makes 22 of his lucky numbers. He then multiplied 22 by 2, which made 44. He added 44 to 2, and it was the fourth ticket he bought. And that is his formula for winning sweepstakes.—Central-Press Canadian.

ATOM BOMB ADAPTED TO BATTLEFIELD?—Third test of atomic weapons on the Nevada proving grounds by the U.S. Atomic Energy commission showed a new and smaller type of explosion, which is believed to prove the development of tactical weapons for use on the battlefield, rather than for use against centres of population. This photo was taken from 50 miles away.—Central Press Canadian.

FALA, little black Scotty who was the late President F. D. Roosevelt's constant companion for five years, died recently at Val Kill Cottage on the Roosevelt estate at Hyde Park, N.Y. He died two days short of his 12th birthday, outliving his master by seven years, less a week. He was buried in the Rose Garden at Hyde Park, not far from the resting place of his master.

RESCUED FROM SAND BUNKER—Louis Scott, who was buried up to his neck for 40 minutes in 50 tons of sand and gravel, at Oakland, Calif., is hoisted to safety by a gravel shovel while tied to a stretcher. Scott lost his footing on top of the bunker as a crane added fresh sand to the pile. The sand and gravel mixture closed over his body. The injured

CANADIAN SINGER WINS U.S. AWARD — Soprano Lois Marshall of Toronto, is the second Canadian to win the Walter W. Naumburg award, one of the highest competitive musical awards on the continent. She attended the competitions in New York to which she will return for a recital in autumn. Betty-Jean Hagen, Edmonton violinist, won the award in 1950.—Central Press Canadian.
